Traumatic Brain Injury Resource Center

We are pleased to welcome Bob Woodruff, ABC News journalist and brain injury survivor. On January 29, 2006 while reporting on Iraqi with American security forces, Bob was seriously injured by a roadside bomb. Just 13 months later he returned to ABC to tell the story of his painstaking recovery and the plight of service members returning from Iraq and Afghanistan with similar injuries. He continues to cover critical global issues as ABC's primary Asian correspondent. For his work covering traumatic brain injury survivors, Woodruff received a Peabody Award. He has received multiple Emmy Awards, the most recent for coverage about the brutal treatment of the Rohingya ethnic group by the government of Myanmar. In 2007 with his wife, Lee, he co-authored the New York Times Best Seller, In An Instant, a chronicle of the perseverance of his family through a time of intense trauma and uncertainty. The couple also founded the Bob Woodruff Foundation to raise money to assist injured service members, veterans and their families.
